

A new conferencing solution for City of Gold Coast

The City of Gold Coast has embraced the future of meetings with an innovative upgrade to its council chamber's conferencing system.

The City of Gold Coast upgraded its council chamber's outdated audio-only discussion system with a cutting-edge Televic conferencing solution, ensuring a modern and seamless meeting experience for both council members and public viewers. This comprehensive upgrade replaced the legacy system with a sophisticated solution that enhances communication, collaboration, and engagement during council meetings.

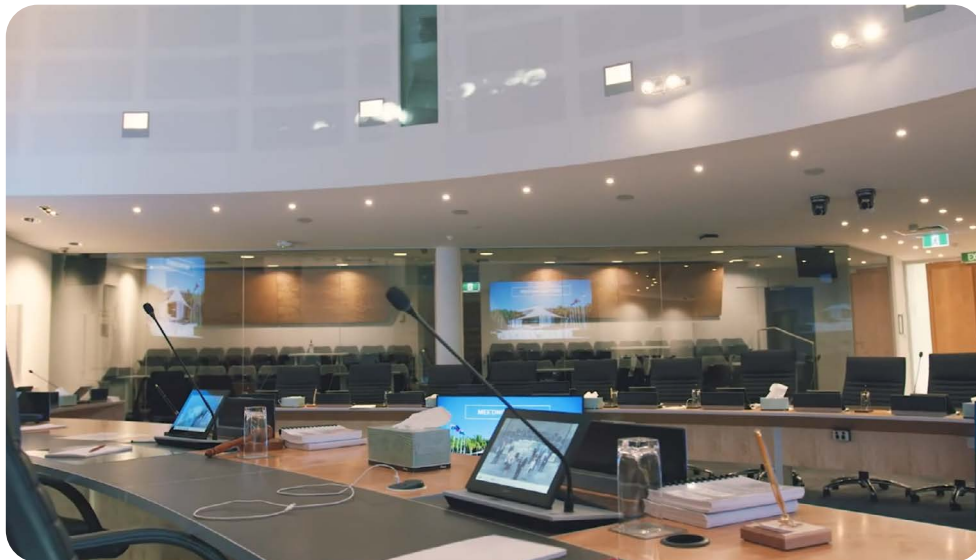

The new Televic conferencing system features 10-inch tabletop units equipped with microphones, speakers, cameras, and multimedia displays for each delegate. This personalized setup provides council members with instant access to all audible and visual information, fostering informed participation and decision-making.

To optimize visual engagement, the council chamber now boasts two large 138-inch full HD LED displays, delivering crisp and captivating presentations. Additionally, four Televic T-CAM cameras automatically track speakers, ensuring that the focus remains on the active participants. A wide-angle camera also captures a comprehensive view of the entire chamber.

In a move towards efficiency and sustainability, the council switched from traditional printed nameplates to Televic's innovative Plixus electronic nameplates. This digital solution use E Ink technology to elegantly display attendee names, eliminating the need for frequent printing and reducing environmental impact.

Pro AV Solutions, a trusted Televic partner, expertly managed the project, implementing the upgrade swiftly and seamlessly with minimal disruption to council meetings. The overall transformation has been met with positive feedback, demonstrating the City of Gold Coast's commitment to innovation and technological advancement.
